

Pennsylvania Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Internships

Pennsylvania WIC internship opportunities offer hands-on participation in a premier public health nutrition education program and provide supervised learning and career experiences in the following tracks:

Business & Information Systems: Majors include Accounting, Business, Computer and Information Systems, Economics, Finance, Information Sciences and Technology, Social Data Analytics and Statistics

Business Management: Majors include Business Management, Human Resources, Political Science and Sociology

Criminal Justice & Program Integrity: Majors include Criminology/Criminal Justice, Security and Risk Analysis and Cyber Security

Marketing: Majors include Marketing, Communications, Journalism and Graphic Design

Nutrition: Majors include Physician Assistant, Nursing, Nutrition and Dietetics

Public Health and Social Work: Majors include Social Work, Psychology, Public Health, Health and Human Development and Health Services

Key Facts

1. The program is designed to provide interns with flexible scheduling.
2. The majors accepted are not limited to the majors provided under each track.
3. Applications are accepted year-round.
4. The internship is not a paid position.

Through our internship program, you will:

- Make a difference for nutritionally at-risk pregnant and postpartum women, infants and children up to age 5.
- Apply your knowledge in a professional setting while still completing your academic degree.
- Explore field and/or clinic work experiences at locations across Pennsylvania.
- Gain valuable knowledge working alongside public health professionals.

To learn more about our program and requirements, call 717-783-1289 or email RA-DHWICINTERNSHIP@pa.gov.